LOCKNEY REGION HEAVY PRODUCER

Cotton Crop Already Taxing Gins to Fullest Running Capacity

SHIPMENTS OF LARGE AND SMALL GRAINS THIS SEASON HAVE BEEN BEAVIEST IN YEARS.

By Daily News Staff Correspondent Lockney, Tex., Oct. 24.—Floyd county is establishing the rich repute of "the Banner Cotton County of the Plains," and the Lockney region is one of the chief cotton producers of Floyd county.

Of the 45,000 cultivated this seamated that 10,000 acres were in the small grains -with oats and wheat $3,930,960. leading, 19,660 acres in Milo maize and kaffir corn; 10.000 acres in cotton, and the remainder in other feed crops-mostly Indian corn, millet and sorghum.

The two Lockney gins have been busy for some time past, both day $529. and night and, up to date, have ginned over 1,500 cotton bales -with perhaps 2,960 more bales to issue from these gins. The cotton fields have matured so early this year that it has been impossible to procure! labor sufficient to keep up with the open bolls. One farmer, for instance, lately saying in Lockney that he had $29,710. 100 acres fully open and not a picker in the field. As next year will see a probable doubling of this season's Floyd county cotton acreage, this scarcity of cotton picking labor presents an imperative county problem which must be solved beforehand and the Lockney and Floydada commercial clubs are already consid-
